Looking after someone can be complicated. It takes so much time to co-ordinate all the different tasks and people involved in sharing the care.

From research grounded in carers’ real lives
From conversations with our members
From focus groups with carers
From our own experience of caring

We ask a simple question:
Could a product of some kind address this problem to make life better for carers?

We rack brains
What if we built an app which combines communication and organisation tools so that carers can co-ordinate people and tasks at the click of a button...

We come up with a solution
Then comes a long journey of turning an idea into something concrete. This is the most difficult bit - it can take months or even years! This critical stage requires lots of feedback and involvement to keep the product on track.

...and ends with a product.

Jointly app features:
Messaging
Communicate with everyone at a touch of a button.
Profile
Store useful info about the person being cared for.
Tasks
Keep organised and on top of things.
Calendar
Create events and invite anyone.
Medications
Keep track of medications and access info from anywhere.
Contacts
Store useful contacts that everyone can access anytime.

Who is Jointly for?
- Carers
- Employers
- Service Providers

It would make life so much easier if I could simply pick up my phone and quickly organise caring tasks and share information easily with the people involved.
